A New Church Beneficiary.

A New Church Beneficiary.

A new scheme has broken out among the Eastern churches to provide for "God's poor." Each church is buying a farm, to which poor people are sent to work out their salvation in fear and turnip patches. This combination of religion and ruta bagas is certainly a happy one, and ought to come into general practice. Steady work on a farm cannot but be far more preferable to the poor of a church than good advice and fine conversation, that is now lavished upon them regardless of cost. There is always something on a farm that anybody can do, and do well, and that will be worth good wages, if the laborer is fairly remunerated, and a church society would be sure to do this. Then, in the would be sure to do this. Then, in the fall, when the golden harvest was gathwould be street to the stiffing atmosphere of the Holy Land, onld be transplanted from their winter supply of spotatoes, carrols, beets, onions, etc., from their own vines and figtrees, so to speak. The report of the Superintendent would show whither the farm was drifting financially, and if it needed any fertilizing top-dressing in the way of a mortgage. Ministers whose health is poor, from hard study and overwork, instead of being sent on an expensive tour to the Holy Land, could be transplanted from the stiffing atmosphere of the study to the beautiful air of the the study to the beautiful air of the the study to the beautiful air of the balmy, breezy country, and set to raising cucumbers on the farm. The exercise would do them good, even if they did not raise enough cucumbers for a mess, and what the church lost on cumbers it would more than save on traveling expenses. It seems to us as though the true plan of salvation has been struck at last. It is not through any of the five hundred different plans any or the live hundred different plans advocated by the five hundred different churches, but through the modest cauliflower, the lowly onion and the golden crookneck summer squash,— Peck's

Alone in the Dark.

Reginald DeMugg stood alone on the steps of the handsome massion, the door of which had just slammed in his face, and in his ears still rang the last words of the fair being whom he madly loved. They were: "Go, and never let me see your face again. You have no style about yourself." And as Reginald stood there under the silent stars, he bitterly repented the act that had left him out in the cold in both senses of the phrase. Through the long summer, through the fail, as the winds wasting with them the first breath of winter, had kissed the leaves and left them nodding with a thousand golden hues, through the winter thus far, he had been through the winter thus far, he had been as a willing slave of the proud beauty, Madeline Stumy, proud in her own womanly beauty, and proud of the position her father's wealth gave to her. And had she not looked coldly on Reginald, and already had their friends nald, and already had their friends coupled their names, and the preachers who saw them meandering together thought of probable fat marriage fees. And now all was lost, and Reginald might never hope to see that fair face again, never hope to feel the soft, responsive presence of those fairy fingers, and as we said, bitterly did he repent, and what had Reginald done?

He had called to take Madeline to a party in the next block and had not party in the next block and had not brought a hack?

And Madeline was not that kind of a bairpin, but had to have a hack if a party was only in the next block. And Reginald did not know this. Hence the slanning of the door, and the speech, and the standing alone under the silent stars. - Evansville Argus.

Washington, May 18.—The executive session of the senate to-day was the scene of another struggle over a collector of internal revenue. The nomination of Buckner for collector at Louisville, Ky., was taken from the calender. Senator Mitchell made a vigorous protest against it, as a machine nomination, going over all the grievances that lately came in vogue among the republican senators who are working their way into the Democratic party. It was the Worthington case over again, excepting that the opposition came Soham, Upper Egypt, state that the from states which had no interest in eclipse of the sun was successfully the matter. The Senate required to put the case down on the calendar and voted to keep it under consideration. The debate on the subject was not exhausted at a late hour, and they adjourned with the matter pending. At the next session Buckner will probably be confirmed by practically the same vote as in the case of Worthington. Cairo, Ill., May 18 .- A conductor on the Mobile and Ohio railroad today reports having seen Frank James at the breakfast table at Rives' Station yesterday morning en route from a station below St. Louis to Mobile. Why is This Thus?

A remarkable fact attending the is the immense wealth of their leadand other learned avocations, accumulate a few thousands in a lifetime; but railroad officials, often rising from mere clerkships, roundmen, ticket and other agents, with salaries running from a few hundreds to a few thousands, eventuate as possessors of many millions. It is no uncommon thing to see a railroad president rising from the humblest station, in the course of fifteen or twenty years, become the owner of five or ten, or even twenty million dollars, at a salary which would not average for the whole time over $12,000. These are mysteries that the common people cannot understand. -Judge Agnew, of Penn.

The Ushers' Thanks.

We desire to return our sincere and hearty thanks to the public generally for their liberal patronage of our benefit entertainment last night, and also to Goodman's band for furnishing splendid music gratis during the evening. The Decatur press will also receive our lowest salaams in acknowledgment of generous complimentary notices. Thanks, thanks, WILL J. LEIBY, JR.,

WILL H. MUZZY, JOHN B. McDONALD, Opera House Ushers.

The Bloomington Leader of last evening contained the following complimentary allusion to a Decatar lady who participated in the exercises in connection with the meeting of the Art Union:

Upon the conclusion of Mr. Ridgely's address Miss Alice Judd, of the Decatur bay window will enlarge the sitting-room Art Class, was introduced, and interested and guests' chamber above and look out the audience with a beautifully worded address on "Indian Art," a subject which has received but little attention from the press and people, and was therefore com-paratively new.

The Circus at Decatur, Monday, May 29th. With the biggest tent, the greatest circus entertainment, the most novel museum attraction, the finest menageric and the best stud of horses, is coming with Batcheller and Doris' Great Inter-Ocean Circus. The managers determined to have | on the road this year the greatest show on earth, and this mammoth aggregation is a the new and old world; in the menageric, the finest and most complete collection of animals, birds and reptiles ever gathered together, and in the museum, the acknowledged "Eighth Wonder of the World," Millie Christine, the Two-Headed Nightingale, who was secured by Messrs. Bat. cheller and Doris, at a salary of $25,000 for the season. Without doubt this attraction alone is worth double the price charged for admission to all the show, which in reality is six ordinary shows combined in one. Another novel feature is the street pageant, given on the morning of the show, which introduces the famous $10,000 prize beauty, who is undoubtedly the handsomest woman in the world. She will be surrounded by open cages of performing animals, beautiful tableaux cars, Jubilce singers and bands of music. This feature is entirely novel in conception and perfect in every detail.

A Persecuted Lecturer. White, the lecturer against Romanism, is well known in Decatur, having held forth here on several occasions. He does success which the maker has achieved, is | not have an easy time everywhere he goes Witness the following from an exchange

Dr. J. G. White, of Stanford, McLean county, lectured at Metamora on last Sunday afternoon and evening and Mouday evening in the Christian church, of Metamora, to large audiences, on his subject "Romanism Not of God." On the latter evening several malcontents outside of the meeting house showed buister-ous dispositions, so much so as to necessitute the intervention of the sheriff, who THE H. S. Phoenix Society, which succeeded the Platonics, has adjourned sine parlors in Central Illinois. His shop, they are died, one member says it has died, any which has entrances from Main and Merhammer and three constants of the finest and most complete tonsorial promptly quelled all such tendencies. They lay in wait, however, and on the reverenced lecturer's return to his hotel, how The parties are known and may be held to answer for their conduct. Mr. White, before commencing his lecture, was inshal, to pay a license for both sides, he was discharged.

Mr. ATEN LYTLE'S fine driving horse on yesterday became suddenly afflicted with the new horse disease, and for a few idence, corner of Jasper and Jeffersen in his employ, and those who favor hours he was in great agony. It was feared he would die. His kidneys were affected, and it appeared as if his hind parts were paralyzed. The remedy, salt brine, (suggested in the REPUBLICAN a few days ago) was speedily applied to the affected parts with good results. The horse was soon relieved of pain, and he is now considered out of danger.

A DECATUR lady attempted to drive the family horse across the Mattit bridge which spans the Sangamon the other day; but after she got on the bridge discovered his support was most excellent, there not | that the approaches on the opposite side were hidden by deep water, and she was compelled to unhitch dobbin from the buggy, turn the rig around, and come back to the city. The river is very high at present, but no doubt in a day or so the water will fall sufficiently to permit the passage of tears over this bridge.

ate Wm. A. Albert, this afternoon. Walter Liston is growing a little nervons. The eventful day is rapidly approaching when he will become a Newnan, with increased responsibilities.

Rev. A. H. Chittenden, formerly pastor of the United Brethren Church, was in the city on Wednesday evening, and met a number of his old friends at the prayer meeting service.

Michael Cavanaugh, who was elected chool director in district No. 5, this township, was strongly opposed by Win. Barnes, who still feels badly about C.'s success. The school is m a flourishing condition at present, with Miss Nicholls in charge.

'Squire E. A. Barnwell and B. F. Stocks, at Cerro Gordo, have formed a copartnership, and will on May 22d open a real estate, collection and insurance office Mr. Stocks, who is an admitted attorney will also run a law office in connection with the other business of the office.

Bloomington Leader: Mr. Charles Ridgely, president of the Central Illinois Art Union, may be called one of the rich est men in Illinois. He is a son of Mr. Ridgely, an old resident banker and capitalist of Springfield, but who, owing to advanced age, retired from active business a few years ago. Mr. Charles Bidgely is realization of this determination. In the circus will be presented the best riders of a picture of a person living on good terms with his cook and contented with the affairs of the world. He is a superior linsiness man, being president of a national bank, the Springfield rolling mills, a railroad director, and also an extensive stock. holder in coal mines and a watch factory. He received a college education and has a great love and admiration for the fine arts. Notwithstanding his immense busi ness affairs, Mr. Ridgely always finds tum to attend the annual meetings of the Ari Union, of which organization he is one of the chief promoters. His residence at Springfield is filled with works of art, and n his own home he is a pleasant and en tertaining gentleman, Masonic Excursion to Peorla.
